Sub: Discordance among controllers w.r.t rating allowance.

Sir,

Reference may be made to previous REC-NR letter no. ATCG(I)/NR/2017/03 dated 20-11-2017 regarding the anomaly and impractical clause in ATMC 07 of 2017. Since the implementation of two stream rating system via CHRM no. 30/2017, there is non-uniformity of rating allowances w.r.t tower controllers. REC-NR has received many representations from memberships on the above subject.

It is a matter of fact that ATCOs who had joined the AAI in same batch/year, some of them have been allotted either Terminal or En-route stream but after rating there is substantial difference of rating allowance. In addition, those who had joined before year 2012 and are working in tower, some of their batchmates/juniors are getting the more rating allowances in En-route stream (non-radar) compare to tower controllers. This is creating very dispirited and repulsive feeling in their day-to-day working life which is not a safe sign for highly sensitive professional job.

In view of the above, some of the suggestions are as below;

1. Concept of Aerodrome control instrument rating (ADI) may be introduced instead of ADC so that tower controller can give collision avoidance heading for the safe operation.
2. JCAC rating should also be combined with terminal stream due to highly sensitive zone (VIP-89).
3. Approach procedural may be combined with ADC instead of approach radar.

Therefore, REC-NR requests you to kindly intervene and deliberate this issue with management on priority basis. An expeditious response would be highly encouraging for tower controllers.

Thanking you.
